Te reo Māori is the indigenous language of Aotearoa New Zealand and is one of our two official languages. In 1986 te reo Māori was guaranteed as a taonga (treasure), under the Treaty of Waitangi and was later made an official language of Aotearoa New Zealand in 1987.

New Zealand has celebrated Te Wiki o te Reo Māori, Māori Language Week each year since 1975, to commemorate the presentation of the 1972 Māori language petition on September 14 to parliament.

Please try not to eat chewing gum in the school. If you do, please remember wrap it in a piece of paper before throwing it in the red bin. That way it won't stick to anything!!!

Next week we welcome

27 students and 1 teacher from Toogijiku High School from Japan
